

Final Points

- Since 1984, the land consumption rate has tripled, while the capital budget per person has also increased dramatically.
- Sprawl costs more: rising school transportation costs and capital budgets are related to the high rate of land consumption.
- A bill is coming due: the costs of current land use sprawl will be paid in the next decade, based on Delaware's recent past.